Kirk Burton: Your Chance To Make A Difference

February is the time of year when Suncoast Fly Fishers elect officers and board members for open positions. This year there are two officer positions and three board member positions open for election/re-election. The officer positions are Secretary and Treasurer. Karen Warfel is eligible for re-election as Treasurer and has agreed to continue in this role if re-elected.

Below are the open positions and the members who have agreed to stand for election. Consistent with our club bylaws, at the February meeting members will be able to make additional nominations for the open positions.

Fly Swappers: Celebrate Mardi Gras on February 19

Members who want to participate in the February Fly Swap must tie Mardi Gras flies and bring them to the February meeting. What's a Mardi Gras fly? Well, Layne Smith, who is handling the fly swap this month for Myron, explains that Mardi Gras flies are flies that are tied with purple, green and gold/yellow materials. Okay, if you want to push the envelope, Smitty said it's okay to put a little red (not much) on the fly. Here's what you do: Call Smitty before the meeting and let him know that you're participating. If he's not there just leave a message. His number is 727-688-2407. Tie three flies with the prescribed colors -- purple/green/gold -- and bring them to Smitty at the meeting.

February Shad Outing: Not this year
Every year about this time Florida fly fishing clubs pass the word about the annual shad outing on the St. Johns River. Walt Durkin has notified us that the 2015 outing has been cancelled because, among other reasons, the campsite is too wet from rain. This is only the second cancellation in 20 years.

Message from the Hog Roast Committee

If you have never been to a Suncoast Fly Fishers Hog Roast, this is your year to go. If you have been and came away disappointed, this is your year to return. If you come every year then welcome back. You’re going to have a great time!

The food is going to be terrific. Sonny’s BBQ is catering and there will be all the ribs, turkey and pulled pork you care to eat plus all the sides and your favorite tea or pink lemonade. If that’s not enough you can bring your own beer, wine or non-alcoholic beverage.

Our own George Haseltine will be master of ceremonies and the featured speaker will be Macauley Lord. Both of these guys are funnier than you might expect from a mild mannered contractor and an award winning fly casting guru. See who takes the trophies for largest fish in each category in our annual fishing tournament and who receives the coveted Visions and Values Award presented by President Kirk Burton.

We have a fantastic slate of raffle prizes and auction items. In total there will be nearly $6,000 worth of merchandise that will appeal to fishermen and non-fishermen alike. The member only door prize is a custom built 5 wt. rod, by master rod builder Alan Sewell with matching line, reel and case. Our grand prize raffle will be a Pescador 10 Kayak complete with paddle and vest. Tickets are just $5 dollars each or 5 tickets for $20. This year for the first time ever we are going to have a very special live auction for an exciting new type of boat. Alan Sewell will display his special talent as auctioneer for a Frontier 12 by NuCanoe. This auction will be held right before we serve dinner so don’t be late. Everyone will find something they want in the silent auction that will continue throughout the evening. There will be all sorts of rods, reels, lines and complete outfits from 5 wt. to 10 wt. Upgrade to an Adventure Technology graphite kayak paddle, look your best in Onos performance sunglasses, stay at the Plantation Inn in Crystal River, travel round trip on the Key West Express from Ft. Myers Beach or Marco Island to Key West, fish with the best guides in the business, improve your casting with private lessons, bid on original artwork and buy all the flies you will ever need from our expert member tiers. If that is not enough you can take a chance in our famous bucket raffle. Tickets are just $1 each, 12 for $10, and 26 for $20.

This is an important event for the club. The money we raise supports everything we do for the year and allows us to serve our veterans and the community at large through the many civic outreach programs that we participate in.

See you there.

Alan Sewell will live-auction the NuCanoe 12-foot Frontier at the Hog Roast

NuCanoe is for Fly Fishers

By Steve Gibson, Southern Drawl Guide Service

"It's so stable you can stand up and tap dance on the deck."

After months of deliberation, I've decided to switch my kayak allegiance to NuCanoe.

I began thinking about NuCanoe last year after fishing out of a Frontier owned by fly-fishing buddy Joe Mahler of Fort Myers. I found the boat has everything I need -- and less.

I like the NuCanoe Frontier for several reasons: It's simple. It's roomy. And it's so stable you can stand up and tap dance on the deck.

Mahler sold me on NuCanoe. He's a fly-fisher extraordinaire, and knows full well what he wants in a boat. There are many fishing kayaks out there that are deplorable fly-fishing boats. Always remember the golden rule: The fly line will tangle on anything it can.

If you're not familiar with the Frontier, please check it out: http://www.nucanoe.com/nucanoe-frontier/

The boat is a hybrid kayak. It's a cross between a kayak and a canoe, hence NuCanoe. It's roomy, well-planned and simple.

I like simple the best.

First thing you'll notice about the Frontier 12 is that it's beamy. It's 41 inches wide. But that makes it very stable.

The seats are unbelievable. They swivel 360 degrees. That means you can fish 360 degrees, something you can't do in most kayaks.

One of the neat things about the Frontier is that you can turn it into a tandem (two angler) kayak in a matter of minutes. That will come in handy when taking my wife out or when I want to guide fly fishers on night snook trips.

Thank you,

NuCanoe.

Alan Sewell's Club Outing Reviews & Previews

January 17, 2015 - Weedon Island Preserve
The Suncoast Fly Fishers enjoyed a beautiful day fly fishing at Weedon Island. The weather was perfect for fishing, as most of the large turn-out caught fish. The species of choice was our famous ladyfish. Karen wade-fished from one spot and caught many ladyfish. The largest was caught by Bob Burkard, a nice 22-3/4” fish that, as it turns out, was the longest of the year. (See tournament results below). Lunch was the frozen chili from our December outing. The pots were scraped clean to fill the last bowl.

Cornbread and apple pie topped of the meal.

February 21, 2015 - Walsingham Park
Our February outing will be freshwater fishing with the largest bass and sunfish taking the monthly award. Park opens at 7:00 am. Lunch will be served around 12:00 noon. We have Shelter #5 reserved, so fish for a few hours and come to eat. Good paddling and boating, but no gas engines. Shelter is across the lake from the boat ramp.

March 21, 2015 - South Sunshine Skyway Bridge Area

April 18, 2014 - Ft. DeSoto Park

April 24 - 26 - Everglades Canals
I can not say enough; this has always been great fishing.
We stay at: Sunrise Sawgrass La Quinta
13651 Northwest 2nd Street
Sunrise, FL
1-954-846-1200, ext #6

Rooms are being held by Alan Sewell, Suncoast Fly Fishers, reservation # 162544.
Call early to book a room in your name. Some of our members are going to be there for five days, so come when you can. Our other fly fishing clubs also want to attend. Rates are $78, plus tax and fees, per night.

Member in the Spotlight... Tom Trukenbrod

Hometown: Winnetka, Illinois

When did you join Suncoast Fly Fishers? About 10 years ago

What is your favorite game fish to catch on the fly and why? Well, maybe not a game fish but a Mayan cichlid is a great fish at the end of a fly line. It fights like it’s on steroids. Next would be a big brown trout that just never wants to stop fighting.

What are your top three places to fish?
1. Fort DeSoto Park
2. Canals by the Everglades
3. Freshwater rivers in upstate New York

What is your go-to fly rod and reel? Saltwater – Cabela’s 4-piece 8-weight with an Orvis disc drag reel. Freshwater: Sage 8.5-foot two-piece with an Orvis disc drag reel.

How and when did you get introduced to fly fishing? In the early ’90s a neighbor in Niskayuna, NY was getting into fly fishing and asked if I would like to come along. We went to the Battenkill in Vermont. He lost interest that first year but 25-years later I still can’t get enough.

Why do you like fly fishing compared to fishing with conventional tackle? The challenge of putting the correct fly where it should be on a trout stream on a windy day.

Weedon Island Preserve Outing : Ladyfish Heaven

Bayou Grande -- looking north from the Weedon Island Preserve fishing pier toward Riviera Bay at 7 am on the morning of the Saturday, January 17 outing. (Chris Byrne photo)

Our January outing and the last month of the 2014-15 tournament was held at Weedon Island Preserve and surrounding waters of Tampa Bay.

Outings chairman Alan Sewell announced the winner of the longest fish award was Bob Burkard who landed a 22 3/4-inch ladyfish. It was one of hundreds of ladyfish caught by members that day. Ken Doty and George Hazeltine recorded some just-under-the-slot speckled trout caught in the Tanglewood neighborhood canal.

The new 2015-2016 tournament season starts next month at Largo's Walsingham Lake.
Trash 'n' Treasures

Our January meeting was a hoot. Somebody else's "trash" became somebody else's treasure at a very modest price. All the money raised goes to pay for the food we consume at our monthly outings.

Auctioneer Alan Sewell doing what he does so well.

Member Mark Craig trucked home Ken Hofmeister's canoe for which he bid and won for only $20.

Larry Morse was very pleased with an Orvis Clearwater fly rod that he scored with a bid of $40.

Bill and Adam Hays will put these one-owner wading boots to good use.
Andy's Bass on the Dog Biscuit

Previous issues of our newsletter have shown that Suncoast Fly Fisher Andy Constantinou has caught carp, bass, tilapia, turtle and a seagull on Smitty's dog biscuit fly. Now you can add a largemouth bass to this floating fly's success list. Andy chum-flung a few lookalike dog food pellets on the water then dropped Smitty's imitation on the surface of a local Apollo Beach pond. Lunkertime! Andy estimates it weighed 4-5 lbs.

Smitty's Dog Biscuit Fly

SEA ROBIN. But not on the dog biscuit fly. Andy also caught this sea robin off of his Tampa Bay dock on a buff and olive Clouser minnow. "I thought it was going to fly away when I saw its wings," Andy said.
Capt. Pat Damico: Fly Casting Clinic. Tip # 63

By Capt. Pat Damico, Master Casting Instructor

Another cause of poor line layout

Incorporating the rod stop discussed in our last tip will result in a good layout of the fly line when it is at the right moment in the cast. If you cast vertically, stopping the rod too close to the water is a frequent cause of poor line layout on the water. Stop the rod a little higher each cast and see what happens. If you cast more horizontally, stop the rod shorter. When practicing, use a tree in the yard or some fixed object as a guide. The rod arc, or angle made from the start of the backcast to the end of the forward cast will vary with different line lengths. The shorter the cast, the smaller the arc or angle.

Tom Jones: Stripping Basket

I rummaged up my latest contraption and strapped it on for another try and it’s perfect for when I really want to put up with having something like that encumbering me while fly fishing in a boat. My problem is that I like to move around a lot on the boat and the crazy thing keeps getting in my way. I like the lower position which makes it much more comfortable to use, and the extra distance from the reel makes it easier to strip a hook-set. The strips are strips of Velcro fastened with canvas snaps. I have a canvas-snap tool if anybody wants to use it.

Find the warmer water

A thermometer is fishing gear.
It's a good idea to carry a water temperature thermometer when you go fishing. The fish we pursue, especially snook, are very sensitive to the 60-degree temperature level since they start to die at temperatures below that level. At above 60 they can function and feed well. You as a fisherman need to be able to find the areas that are above sixty because that’s where they will be. With this knowledge you can bet that I will be carrying my thermometer, just as soon as I find it.

My what big eyes you have
Some fly tiers are using large holographic eyes on shrimp patterns and have been reporting some very good catches. Again the question is whether it's the pattern or the eyes that trigger the strikes. I'm sure you'll agree that this experiment is interesting enough to try. Let's do it, and see what happens.

Make your fly sink. Now!
If you are on the water and need a deep-running fly but don't have one with you, you can add a split shot if available. Or, you can carry a few freshwater bead heads that you would use to tie weighted nymphs, wooly buggers and other streamers. Simply start to tie a loop knot with your leader tippet, tying the beginning open knot as usual, then passing the tippet through the hook eye. Then pass the tippet through the bead, and finish the knot as you normally would. The bead will take the fly down, and the bead will be free to slide around a bit, imparting an attractive wounded-baitfish action. Clever, eh?

Go get 'em, and good luck!

If you go fly fishing at Andros Island, take a spinning rod. Afternoon winds blow in the 25-knot range, making for tough fly casting, given the vagaries of bone fishing. Who knows where they’ll suddenly appear, requiring an impossible cast. A friend of mine takes frozen shrimp in Ziploc bags, which he keeps in a cooler and uses to tip his jigs. He’s a hero at 3PM.

I’ve let my enthusiasm get in the way when planning bonefish trips. Once I listened to an “outfitter” who’s office is in Wyoming, which means that he’d fished-- or so he said-- a particular bone fish camp at Sandy Point in the Abacos. The “big fish” turned out to be in the 3-lb range and hard to find, the lodge’s only operational boat was a 20-ft, very old fiberglass skiff which a kid from Nassau poled with a pine sapling...once he got the hang of poling, which he’d only done a few times. With three anglers aboard, it was a mess.

The lodge dining room with the water view was shut down immediately after dinner, so we retired to our rooms for drinks. Why was it shut down? Here’s why: in the wee hours on our first night I heard a mysterious rustling sound and flipped on the light to check it out. I’d brought a box of mangoes for our group and the Bahamians we’d meet. It was in the open closet at the foot of my bed. The noise was being made by a swarm of cockroaches on the mangoes-- healthy, three-inch palmetto bugs, at least a hundred of ‘em. Maybe more rustled to get away, in cracks and crevices and under our beds. I couldn’t move fast enough to kill more than five or six.

Obviously, the kitchen and counter-tops in the dining area were covered too, but we were spared that lovely vision. Some sort of cataclysmic infestation?

There were five of us on that trip, all good friends since childhood. Two of ‘em are dead now, but I guarantee you they remembered that trip until they died.

Big win for saltwater anglers. Recreational saltwater anglers have always felt like the saltwater fisheries management agency always favored commercial fishing interests. Finally, recreational fishing and boating interests came together and proposed a way to change all that, a plan that called on NMFS -- National Marine Fisheries Service -- to recognize the monetary value of saltwater recreational angling. It was known as the Morris-Deal Commission, named after two industry leaders who dedicated their influence and personal time to the cause, Bass Pro Shops founder Johnny Morris and Maverick Boats’ Scott Deal. Their plan was unveiled in February 2014 at the Miami Boat Show. It worked. Just a year later, in mid-February 2015, also at a Miami Boat Show press conference, NOAA Administrator Eileen Sobeck announced a new national fisheries policy based on the input of the Morris-Deal Commission. She called it a "valuable road map" for the future that supports programs that strengthen populations of fishes important to saltwater anglers. (Miami Herald)

Gulf snook season opens March 1. This year the Florida Fish and Wildlife Research Institute is asking us to fillet our legally-caught snook -- that's a 28-33 inch slot on the Gulf coast -- and take the filleted carcasses (with organs intact) to a participating bait and tackle store. The marine scientists will analyze it and quantify the data about Florida's premier inshore game fish. In Pinellas County participating tackle stores are Marino’s Marina in Palm Harbor and I.C. Sharks in St. Pete. In Tampa Gandy Bait & Tackle is also participating. (MYFWC)

Lake Okeechobee’s restoration plan. In 2025 Lake Okeechobee will be measurably cleaner than it is today. That's the 10-year plan recently formalized by Florida’s Environmental Protection Department to reduce nutrients and phosphorous in the lake and the nutrients and phosphorous that flows into the lake. Check it out. (The Fishing Wire)

Rock Pythons moving to the Everglades? You're more likely to see a Burmese python when you fish the Everglades canals in April. But wildlife officials are scared to death, figuratively speaking, that the dreaded rock python is moving that way up from Miami. And don’t let your dog get close to one either. (Fox News)

Assigning blame. And why didn't you catch fish today? Was it the fly pattern you used? Your casting? Time of day? Capt. Pat Damico discusses this in this comprehensive article about how to make your fly fishing experiences more productive...for a lifetime. (CapMel.com)

Look, it’s a 'yak. It’s a canoe. It’s a skiff. -- No, it's the best of all three. It's the NuCanoe and you'll have an opportunity to bid on the 12-foot Frontier in a special live auction at the Hog Roast on Feb. 28. Sarasota guide Steve Gibson turned us on to it. As he says, you can stand on the deck and dance a jig. Spend a few minutes checking it out on the NuCanoe website. (NuCanoe.com)
